believe to be entirely fair to both the government and the bond owner. My reason for making this offer at this time is that I find from today's treasury statement that we took in in cash this month $2,013,562 more than we paid out, and this single day the excess of receipts over expenditures was $1,981,444.

"The circulation of the country could not stand this drain very long without being affected seriously, and as I do not wish to increase the deposits in the national bank depositories, there was only one thing to do, and that was to buy bonds. I can give no approximate idea of how long this offer will remain open, or of how many bonds I shall purchase, or of how long it will take to sell would do well not to count on any great length of time."

TREASURER ROBERTS MAKES HIS REPORT.

YEAR'S FINANCIAL OPERATIONS OF GREAT MAGNITUDE.

Net Ordinary Revenues Increased Over Twenty Million Dollars Above Those of the Preceding Twelve Months—Gold Reserve Kept Intact—Stock of Money.

THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The annual report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office says that 15,562,796 acres of public land were disposed of during the last fiscal year, an increase of 2,108,909 over the previous year, which was the banner year in public-land sales. The surplus from the entire land and forest administration is $3,684,442. Following is a summary of the recommendations for legislation:

Appointment of a commission to examine, consider and report on the survey and disposal of the public lands; the insular possessions of the United States; forfeiture of lapsed right of way grants; discontinuance of Yukon and Circle City district land office in Alaska by consolidation with the Sitka office, at least for the present, as the receipts do not justify continued maintenance; repeal or modification of the act of June 23, 1888, to protect homestead settlers who enter the military or naval service in war time; compulsory acquisition of lands at hearings of reports of special land agents involving the validity of entries of public lands; repeal of general laws relating to the timber on reserved public lands, and the enactment of a general law to afford a supply of future generations; extension of the Yellowstone National Park, so as to embrace the Yellowstone timberland reserve, comprising 121 square miles, all that portion of the Teton forest reserve lying east of the summit of Teton range, 102 square miles, and unreserved areas of thirty square miles at the southwest corner of the park in Idaho, and 300 square miles at the northwest corner in Montana; extension of the forest-fire act to meet the various causes of fires and over-coming the danger from every source; modifications of the act permitting exchange of lands within forest reservations for those without by a proviso that the relinquished tract has not been unnecessarily exchanged; that the lands shall be of approximately the same value, and rejecting such selections for lands returned as agricultural, if, before approval, it be found to be mineral; withdrawal of all public lands more valuable for forest uses than for other purposes from settlement, entry, sale and other disposition, and holding them for the protection and utilization of their timber; establishment of national parks to preserve prehistoric ruins, petrified forests, caves and for other purposes; appropriation of at least $150,000 to prevent depredations on timber lands, and for the protection of public lands; unlawful entry; an appropriation of $50,000 to protect timber on unreserved lands; and protection of fish and game in forest reserves; relief of bona fide settlers within forest reserves who have settled prior to the establishment thereof but who failed to file claims or to obtain title by adverse possession, to place their claims on record within the statutory period.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

Applications for Pardon. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The President today denied six applications for pardon, granted one pardon, and restored three to citizenship. Edward May, 37 years of age, was convicted at Nome, Alaska, March 22, 1901, of larceny and sentenced to imprisonment for five years in the penitentiary at McNeil's Island, Washington. He is pardoned on the ground that the sentence was excessive, and that the boy has been punished sufficiently.

President's Northwestern Tour. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Representative Jones of Washington called on the President today to pay his respects to him, and referred to his great interest in the Northwest, and said he expected to make a tour of that part of the United States next summer.

Invited to Charleston. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The President today invited to attend the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian Exposition, to be held in Charleston, beginning December 2, the President said that he would attend, if public business would permit.

Archbishops Pay Respects. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Archbishops Ireland of St. Paul and Riordan of San Francisco paid their respects to the President at the White House today.

Practical Poultry Points. A. F. Hunter tells in the Practical Farmer of a successful chicken raiser who marketed 4000 chickens between April 1 and August 31, for the net sum of $123,000, of which about $1000 was profit. Some of the earliest sold at 11 cents, of which about 75 cents was profit. He said it took nine weeks to make a one and one-half pound chicken and eleven weeks to make a two-pounder. He begins with a mixture of meal and a very little meat meal, soft but not sloppy. This with millet seed and finely cracked wheat is the food for the first week, then finely cracked corn is added. Until three weeks old they are fed five times a day. After that three times a day. In the morning a mash of cornmeal or gluten meal with bran in equal parts, and a little of the meat meal, wheat at noon, and cracked corn at night. At the middle of the forenoon green food, and middle of the afternoon cut fresh bone, and all the skim-milk they care to drink. They not only live and grow, but he averages about 5 cents a pound above the market rates because of their excellent quality. He could not do this with dry grain, because they would not make that growth on dry grain in so short a time, and when they reached that weight the meat would be poorer in quality. He says the food he brings them to two pounds weight costs 8 cents each, the labor is 7 cents each, besides the picking which is 5 cents, and as he markets one chicken for each two eggs out in incubators, he charges them with two eggs at 5 cents, making the cost 25 cents each when they weigh two pounds. His green food is lawn mow clippings when it is in season, rape when the grass supply runs short, and finely-cut clover hay made fresh by steaming in fall and winter. One important feature is to never overfeed, but keep them just a little hungry, so that they will have an appetite for the next meal.—(American Cultivator.)

FRANK G. CALVERT'S letter in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday will tell of the greatest native ruler of Java, and his people.

577 pesos in silver and 34,122 in bronze have been exchanged under the authorizing act into $3,440,220 in United States currency. The exchanges have now fallen to such small proportions as to indicate that but few of the old coins remain in circulation.

Up to July 24, 1901, the collections on account of the Porto Rican tariff fund amounted to $609,950. On that date the President set apart this fund for public and permanent improvements in the islands, as required by law. By October 1, additional collections of $23,881 were deposited in the fund.

Since July 1, 1900, the principal of the indebtedness of the Central Pacific Railway Company has been reduced in the sum of $4,738,740 by cash payments and transportation furnished. The balance of the principal remaining unpaid at the date of the last transaction was $23,269,562, secured by first mortgage bonds for $23,570,000 as collateral.

Celery as a Nerve Tonic.

Probably no other class of people suffer more with rheumatism than the dwellers in your city. The cause of this dreadful disease is, or should be, right at hand. It is celery. Probably the dwellers in your city are not so much troubled with rheumatism, but they have nervous debility as a result of the celery. Celery is a powerful diuretic, and for that reason, celery would, I am sure, be a sovereign remedy. If celery were eaten freely, it would remove from rheumatism and nervous prostration would be comparatively few. It is a mistaken idea that cold and dampness produce rheumatism; they simply develop it. Acid blood is the primary and sustaining cause. If celery is eaten freely an alkaline blood is the result, and where this exists there can be neither rheumatism, gout nor nervous prostration. Cut it into bits and boil until soft in as little water as possible. Add to this half as much milk as there is water in the celery; thicken with flour and season with butter, pepper and salt.

If you could not give it a fair trial, I am sure you will soon leave potatoes out of the daily bill of fare, as long as you have celery. It is nice as a sauce for any kind of cold meat or fowl, or for roasted game, poultry or any kind. Children will like it poured over potatoes, or it may be drained from the sauce, mixed with mashed potatoes, formed into little cakes and browned.—(A. C. In Florida Farmer and Fruit Grower.)

Sensible Hog Keeping.

To be profitable, one must have good sows and always a thoroughbred male of the breed preferred, not overlooking the individuality of the boar because his pedigree is good. The male should be kept in a lot to himself. Feed him, and the sows as well, on food that tends to large growth rather than fat. The business of the market hog in the corn belt is to convert the corn crop into cash, so, of course, his principal food is corn, but corn alone will not do for breeding stock. Good pasture, clover preferred, is advantageous to all swine, but especially to breeding stock. The pigs should be kept gentle, the male especially, by being often scratched and petted; then they can be readily driven.

It is generally best to keep the same male and sows for several years if they prove good, prolific breeders. The policy of using young stock for breeding is liable to produce small pigs, which are formed into little cakes and browned.—(A. C. In Florida Farmer and Fruit Grower.)

An Impudent Man.

He: What is that badge you are wearing with "D. A. R." on it? She: Oh, that means "Daughters of the American Revolution." He: Dear boy, how you must miss your nurse when you are away from home.—(Chicago News.)

From Experience.

Mrs. Crimshaw: When it comes time to turn on the stove heat in our flat, the noise is something awful. I always put my fingers in my ears. Mrs. Yeast: My! Is your husband as prone as that? An Exception. First Mormon: Ah, there goes Elder

SMITH'S CURE FOR ANARCHY.
Harper's Weekly calls public attention to a new cure for anarchy, or anarchy, suggested by Prof. Goldwin Smith of Boston, of some where in New England. It seems that Prof. Smith has been considering the question of anarchy and the need for its suppression, and has reached a conclusion. He has kept abreast of the current discussion of this moral disease, and has taken note of the various remedies suggested; but he finds them all practically valueless, or even worse than the disease.

Prof. Smith thinks that the most practical of all the extraordinary remedies suggested as a cure for anarchy is "an extension of the teaching of music in our schools." He declares that music is "moral education," as the Greek lawgivers knew, and he is firmly of opinion that "a man with music in his soul is not likely to play anarchy."

Strange that we hadn't thought of this before. Now that Prof. Goldwin Smith has called attention to the matter, the proposed remedy is doubtless entitled to further consideration. Prof. Smith, by hinting around a little, can do no doubt induce some member of Congress to introduce a bill, at the forthcoming session, providing for daily hand concerts and such things in all the more pestiferous hotbeds of anarchy throughout the country. (All same Central Park, Los Angeles.) The measure might go farther, and on the principle that prevention is better than cure, provision could be made for the placing of hand-organs, with musical accompaniment, on all the more prominent street corners in our larger cities. It is apparent to the most superficial observer that such an installation would have a distinct tendency to discourage anarchy and everything else within hearing. As to whether this remedy would be worse than the disease, is a debatable question. It may at least be said that the general debate which would follow would probably become so interesting that everybody (including anarchists) would forget all about anarchy—and that would certainly be a distinct gain.

As the editor of Harper's Weekly opportunely points out, Prof. Goldwin Smith's plan has at least one very great merit: It is not unconstitutional. In these piping days of law legislation, when nearly everything is unconstitutional, it is a distinct and startling discovery to find something which is not unconstitutional. Therefore, let us give credit where credit is due—even unto Prof. Goldwin Smith, who has never before, so far as we can readily remember, suggested any reform or remedy that was really practical.

It is a well known and often verified fact that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." Such being the case, why should not the charms of music be potent, also, in soothing anarchy's breast? The latter is indubitably savage, in a greater or less degree, and there can be no doubt that it requires soothing. If man-ordained governments are to endure, and if the world is to continue revolving upon its axis. So, by all means, let Prof. Goldwin Smith's compound elixir of music be given a fair and thorough trial.

It might be well to begin on Herr Most, who has just been sent to jail for one year for sedition and anarchy utterances. Let him be chained in his dungeon and subjected for a period of twenty-four hours each day and every day during his term of confinement, to the constant repetition and reiteration of the tune, let us say, of "Ma Honolulu Lady," or something of the sort. If such a regime doesn't either kill or cure old Herr Most, he is a tougher specimen of the genus anarchy than we have heretofore supposed him to be; and we have heretofore supposed him as one of the toughest of his tribe.

If Prof. Goldwin Smith's cure should prove effective in the case of Herr Most, it might be tried upon Emma Goldman, John P. Altgeld, Edward Atkinson, Congressman Lantz, Abraham Isaacs, H. Phillips Gaylord, W. R. Hearst, and others too numerous and too insignificant to mention. Why not give Prof. Goldwin Smith and his great anarchy-cure a fair show?

Is Col. Watterston "lanked up" with a series of rear-platform speeches, proposals of his gubernatorial aspirations in Kentucky?

no action whatever upon the letter above referred to, but that he had referred the letter to the Secretary of the Navy, who will consider it in the regular course of business. This, doubtless, brings down upon the head of the President some abuse from labor-union demagogues, but, then, fortunately for the country, the present occupant of the White House is not a man to be swayed an inch from what he believes to be the path of duty, either by abuse or by flattery.

COUNT VON MOLTKE'S SURPRISE.
Count Otto Von Moltke, a nephew of the great Field Marshal, Von Moltke, has just sailed from New York for Hamburg. Count Otto had been in the United States since October 4, having been appointed by the Prussian Parliament, of which he is a member, as a commissioner to visit the United States and make a study of transportation methods in this country.

In an interview, just previous to his departure, Count Von Moltke declared that he was "electrified" at the progress which Americans have made in the method of transportation. "It is impossible for anyone in Europe to understand this without seeing it," said he. "The best expression I have heard here," he continued, "is 'up to date,' which tells the whole story. You have shown the most progress in adapting electricity as a means of transportation. The German Siemens are the fathers of electrical improvement, and the Germans conceive many methods, but they cannot take hold of things the way the Americans do. Conservative methods keep the Germans from launching out extensively in any scheme. Europeans are theoretical and Americans are practical. The Europeans formulate and you put into practice."

There is unquestionably a great deal of truth in the views expressed by this representative German. Americans, broadly speaking, are intensely practical. They are not content with mere theorizing, nor with the abstract demonstrations of science. They must needs apply the ascertained truths of science to human necessities and desires. It is because Americans are quick to perceive and apply to practical uses the discoveries of science that they have made such marvelous material progress. Joined to the ability to perceive the significance and the scope of new discoveries, Americans are possessed of restless energy and unbounded enterprise. The conjunction of these qualities necessarily makes for advancement.

But Americans formulate as well as put into practice. We have no reason to be ashamed of our record in the field of original discovery and invention. If our scientific investigators have been more practical (and possibly less profound) than their European counterparts in sounding the secrets and investigating the forces of Nature, their work has been rich in achievement. They have greater and more valuable results to show for their labors than have the investigators of any other nation. There is no need to enumerate the triumphs of discovery and invention. Their fruits are to be seen on every hand, and these practical applications of the newest and best results of physical research are what "electrified" the Count Von Moltke.

Of what practical use is abstract science, unless its researches and revelations be made applicable in some way for the benefit of mankind? Knowledge for its own sake is a beautiful ideal, but it has no truly logical basis, and no very convincing reason for existence. The American ideal is that of theory linked closely with practice; of both formulating and executing; of dreaming, followed by realization. Out of this ideal has been evolved the marvelous progress which has "electrified" not Count Von Moltke alone, but the whole civilized world.

From the results of that automobile accident in New York it would appear that a "drivable" horseless machine wouldn't be a bad thing for some inventor to get out.

New York modest as the idea that Mrs. Roosevelt's $200-per-year dress idea can be carried out. Perhaps they are hinting around that they would like an itemized statement.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

LOS ANGELES. With the easy swing of a saloon song, the road, Charles E. Blaney's farce, "A Female Drummer," opens sample rooms in Los Angeles. It is all light comedy, just ready to appear, and not calculated to induce hard drinking. In the unfolding of the three acts, the actress woman with an occasional word about business, and a steady sparkle of nonsense, appears often enough to keep the clear. There are several pieces of tolerably pretty girls, with a good sprinkling of shapely anatomy and occasional lusty sayings. The society is too much travel-stained for a drummer's accompaniment, but the elevator feature and the garden picture are good. The waltz quartet, in the third act, was heartily enjoyed at the first night's performance. Miss Johnstone Bennett in the title role makes a vivacious character. David De Wolfe delineates a fair specimen of living caricature.

"A Female Drummer" tonight and tomorrow night, with matinee tomorrow.

HAZARD'S PAVILION. This evening the Royal Italian Band, under the direction of Sig. Giuseppe Creatore, will open its engagement at Hazard's Pavilion for anyone. Europe's great-class foreign musical organizations which have visited this country, this band is claimed to be the best. It is a well-known and always successful band. The Italianes excel all other nations in music, and what America is to the world in a commercial sense, Italy is in the arts, particularly music. Her supremacy has never been questioned, hence when it is known that the Royal Italian Band composed of the foremost band musicians of that sunny kingdom, it will be readily seen that it should be a superior organization. When was organized, the band was chosen because of his ability with the particular instrument he was to play. The band is composed of musicians capable of doing any of the really difficult solo work in the rendering of the Italian opera and masterpieces. The program never consisted entirely of the high-class music, but are carefully arranged that they will play the most popular music, those who are so fortunate as to be highly educated in music, enough popular selections being on each to insure the success of the evening.

The sale of seats for "The Henrietta," which will be presented at the Los Angeles Theater Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, will open this morning at the box office.

Memorial for Father Serra.
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It seems to me that the suggestion made last evening by J. E. Shannon, Jr., the meeting of the Newman Club, regarding a suitable memorial to mark the final resting place of Father Serra, is worthy more than passing notice. Though a different faith than that represented by this great religious pioneer, I believe that he would have been a great admirer of the man whose devotion and genius mark him the leader in a work so remarkable and of such magnitude as that of the Franciscan fathers on this Coast more than a century ago. Whatever name one may give as a follower of Christ, and even though he may not be a priest, (lower, no one, it seems to me, can fail to be interested in that unique portion of our history, the story of the old Franciscan mission stations. No one with any true historical instinct could be so willing, I am sure, to see the final resting place of this great leader in that movement sink into neglect and decay.

As history reflects these missions are entirely unique in our nation, and the people of California should be unwilling to have any grave or building which is the center of our history, forgotten, destroyed or further neglected.

I do not know the condition of Father Junipero's tomb, but for the sake of those who will follow us, let the people of this state, regardless of religious belief, plan and send up a memorial about the ashes of this man, whose great work on this Coast was contemporaneous with the Declaration of Independence.

Trim Overhanging Branches.
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Is there an ordinance compelling property owners to trim overhanging branches of trees which are a nuisance to the sidewalk? If there is, ought it not to be enforced, particularly on the boulevard?

On the west side of Spring street, in the block south of the postoffice, there are some pepper trees, the branches of which hang over the sidewalk. The people must either "duck" or have their hats soiled by the dusty rain.

Some one should "kick."

[There is such an ordinance. It does not apply in the country, however.—E. L. Times.]

NEGRO LYCHED.
Kentuckians Took the Law in Their Hands Where a Man Had Forced a Child to Commit Crime.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.]
HODGENVILLE (Ky.), Oct. 31.—A mob of fifty or seventy-five determined citizens came down upon this little town about 2 o'clock this morning and took from the jail Bill Eaters, a negro, charged with forcing Granville Ward, a fifteen-year-old boy of Near Upton, to commit a crime, and strung him to the Courthouse steps. So quietly and systematically did the mob go about its work that the citizens of the town were in ignorance of the existence of the mob until the negro was in its clutches.

The citizens composing the lynching party approached the jail, and upon seeing the negro, the keys were surrendered to them. The cell in which the negro was confined was entered, and the noise was made by the mob as they dragged down the jail stairs and out into the street. He managed to slip the noose from his neck and made his escape. The mob, however, was not deterred, and after the negro, howling and firing at him with guns and pistols. The negro, when he was shot, fell from the top of the mob, and was killed. The noose was again placed about the negro's neck and he was dragged down the street and swung to the topmost steps.

The mob was formed in the neighborhood of the crime. When the work of lynching the negro had been accomplished, the members of the mob quietly dispersed and went to their homes.

Count Von Moltke has been in this country since October 4, having been appointed a commissioner of the Prussian Parliament, of which he is a member, to study transportation methods. In an interview he said:

"It is a matter of disappointment that I am obliged to return to Germany so soon, but your climate is so severe for me, and my physician has ordered me to go home at once on account of lung trouble. I have been here long enough, however, to gain many valuable suggestions. I have visited the Pan-American Exposition and the Pennsylvania Railroad. From them I have acquired considerable valuable material. I also gained much information as to the making of an exhibition at Madison Square Garden."

"I am electrified with the progress you Americans have made in the methods of transportation. It is impossible for anyone in Europe to understand this without seeing it. The progress which you have shown in adapting electricity as a means of transportation, the German scientists are the fathers of electrical improvement, and the Germans conceive many methods, but they cannot take hold of things the way the Americans do. THE LAND.

Orchard, Farm, Garden, Rancho and Stockyard.

[J. W. JEFFREY, AGRICULTURAL EDITOR.]

NOTES AFIELD.

Purifying the Land.

THE report upon the Russian thistle campaign in the Redondo district closed with the month of September. Yesterday the report of October operations was handed in, showing that 137 acres have been cleaned of thistle and the weeds by the energetic farmers who have one this work were: William Leich, 20 acres; Downey estate, 10; C. W. Moser, 20; John Venable, 40; Golden, 45; George Nadeau, 20; Stinson, 45; Wilden, 10; Tasker, 2. In every other infected place work is under way but not completed, the rain interfering with the burning of the uprooted plants.

When this greatest of weed pests is subdued and finally exterminated, the authorities should turn their attention to the wild radish and mustard. The farmer claims that another year of sharp campaigning against the thistle will drive it out entirely. No one had any idea that the weed had secured such a hold in Los Angeles county. In regard to the mustard, it has done immense damage to growing crops on adobe lands, and prevented the planting of grain in many infected localities. I have been told that the wild mustard seed blasted in every locality this season, and that the land will be comparatively free next year. I have discovered the failure to produce seed in mustard fields northwest of the city and about Inglewood. If this state prevails generally, as claimed, next summer would be a good season for the farmers to exterminate the mustard pest.

Winter Lily Pads.

The novelty of one of Los Angeles county's institutions leads me to remark upon it. The growing and shipping of water lilies all winter is not possible in the East without the use of an ice hook and a saw and even then they would of course not grow even under ice. I saw a lily nursery yesterday where over fifty thousand aquatic plants, The Victoria Regia, floated in its immense leaves six feet in diameter and the improved water hyacinth pushed its beautiful blue bouquets into the air. The plants are packed in boxes and shipped to all parts of the country. The proprietor will ship his plants all winter, the season being the liveliest in February. He has a fine lot of water lily blooms at this season, including a few burning buds of the Victoria six inch of the water lily. Two large, shallow reservoirs are devoted to the cultivation of these aquatic plants, and when the proprietor gets an order he pulls on a pair of rubber boots, wades in and raises the plants like fish for clams. No other temperate climate can show the beautiful winter water lilies grown in Los Angeles and adjacent territory.

Guarding Grape Interests.

A letter from one of the largest vineyardists in Los Angeles states that the efforts of the horticultural authorities to prevent the introduction of phylloxera is meeting with warm favor from the grape growers. It states that Prof. C. R. State Quarantine, who has proved the ordinance lately passed by the Supervisors and that the growers along the foothill country are all measures to the enforcement of the ordinance to exclude insects from the vineyard. A map of the infected districts is being prepared for distribution among the wine makers and buyers of grapes generally to secure them in making their purchases. The wine men and growers are acting with horticultural Commissioner Hughes and have agreed to cancel all contracts in affected districts. The Tribune says that the vineyardists are not alarmed by the phylloxera but are determined to prevent its spread. It has been held that because phylloxera has not appeared here during the past year there is no danger of its getting a hold. Such argument would meet with little if applied to the spread of the world, but these people refused to believe it, and their bankrupt homes and dead vineyards are irrefutable evidence of their lack of wisdom. The Los Angeles county vineyardists showed their wisdom by petitioning to keep the phylloxera out altogether. If it should appear, no efforts will be made to stamp it out. The Enterprise says a Mr. Wheeler proposes to kill the pest if the vine growers of Healdsburg are willing to put up the price. Phylloxera killers are thick in that region round about, contracting that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Along the Roadside.

Some objection has been made to the policy of cutting down the scale-infested shade trees of Southern California. In one locality a whole line of pepper trees is being sacrificed for the good of an orange grove adjacent. No objection to the destruction of the trees was offered by the Supervisors, as far as I have heard, although they are the cultural backbone of the roadside. The roadsides of the county. It was to discuss the rights and duties of the Supervisors, the Councilmen and the property owners that a convention was proposed last summer. There is no doubt that the first duty of a public horticultural commission when the question comes to the maintenance of a nuisance within the meaning of the law regulating the extermination of insect pests. The owners of property upon which public shade trees are growing, and the Supervisors and Councilmen who have charge of the streets and highways, cannot be disturbed in their joint ownership of the shade trees until the question of a public horticultural commission is introduced. If the fact of dangerous insect infection can be established, then the matter is greatly simplified, and can be treated arbitrarily by the horticultural board.

There is no doubt that a crisis is approaching in the treatment of the shade tree. It must be met by intelligent conference; by the gradual elimination of insect-breeding varieties and the substitution of trees that are not a declared public nuisance; by planting upon all new streets and roadsides trees that are not subject to attack by dangerous insect pests. The horticultural commission is called upon every year to pass upon the destruction of infected shade trees. It will require the utmost cooperation between the quarantine guards and the tree owners to bring this matter to a satisfactory conclusion. Forestry Force Reduced.

The policy of the Interior Department in reducing the fire-fighting forces of the San Gabriel reservation has brought out numerous protests from the fruit growers of the foothills. Protests seem to have been of no avail and argument has failed to produce effect. The Interior Department is not to blame for the reduction of the patrol forces. It has been charged that the forestry officers in charge that the proprietors of the vineyards guarding against fire have not been sufficient to pay for thorough work. This throws the blame upon Congress, for the Interior Department is not to blame for the reduction of the patrol forces. The movement in favor of national irrigation, which is so noticeably a candidate in this time, may help the irrigators already using water from the forest reservations. It certainly should move our Congressmen to the protection of irrigation, which is so noticeably a candidate in this time, may help the irrigators already using water from the forest reservations. Worth of Water.

Glendora is feeling the effects of the recent acquisition of water from the artesian belt of the San Dimas. Land is selling rapidly there for farm improvement, and progress will only be limited by the size of the irrigable territory. A perpetual water right of one inch to seven acres is offered in portions of the Glendora belt for $500 an inch, with pumping and pipe charges added. This is an adequate supply, and if the pumping terms can be made reasonable it will give this favored portion of Southern California a genuine horticultural boom.

road and street. In spite of the scarcity of water these trees have grown large and are exceedingly beautiful. How this precious strip of frostless soil can be utilized without the destruction of the pepper trees will prove a puzzling problem to those who have overrun this hitherto dry territory and plan to profitably develop it. Many are the holders of town lots who paid $500 to $1000 apiece for them, and the owners will be loth to give them up at acre prices. While this adjustment is going on, the people of Glendora should get all the information offered upon the street shade-tree question, and should have a delegation present at the convention to hear what the Academy of Sciences, the Park Commission, the Supervisors and the Chamber of Commerce have to say upon this troublesome question. The great influx of water at Glendora will cause these pepper tree monopolists, who own a land in the extraordinary growth that will follow.

The Honey Crop.

The remarkable revival in the honey business in California, brought about by the return of the propolis season and the prospect of its continuance, renders every item concerning the bee industry interesting to the general reader. I was told by the president of the Southern California Beekeepers' Association, who held a few days ago in Los Angeles, that interested parties had reported the production of 2000 carloads of honey in California this season. He said that the crop was thus exaggerated by 1500 carloads. In this estimate the growers' figures have been verified by the Pacific Bee Journal and by the American Cultivator. The States east of the Mississippi River will give only a fair crop, of which considerably more than usual will be extracted. Ontario promises the best yield since '98, many apiaries averaging seventy-five pounds per hive. In the summer the bees have been kept on all new streets and roadsides trees that are not subject to attack by dangerous insect pests. The horticultural commission is called upon every year to pass upon the destruction of infected shade trees. How Insects are Introduced.

Not long ago a ship from one of the foreign countries was followed by a flock of butterflies, which persistently circled around the rigging of the vessel, until the shore had faded in the distance. The insects were in great numbers and were very persistent. A few disappeared in the night, and a few were destroyed in the water, or reached the shore in safety. Some of the others were taken by the crew, and were kept for a few days. The ship was a large one, and was carrying a large cargo. The butterflies were of a variety of colors, and were very beautiful. They were seen in great numbers, and were very persistent. A few disappeared in the night, and a few were destroyed in the water, or reached the shore in safety.

To Transport Perishable Goods.

A bulletin is soon to be issued by the Weather Bureau at Washington on the subject of protecting perishable goods in transportation. A new kind of refrigerator is described, and has at each end four galvanized iron cylinders reaching from the floor to near the ceiling. The cylinders are filled with ice and salt, and are connected by a system of pipes. THE FARM.

Watch Chain of Spuds. A newspaper man over in Iowa recently received two presents, one of which he considered of more than great value. He thinks the donor of the first, a hair chain, briefly, and then goes to pieces over the other, as follows: "The other, which is much more valuable from a pecuniary standpoint, is a watch chain of spuds. It consists of thirteen potato tubers as large as marbles, and is artistically attached to the adjoining one by a chain of spuds. Each spud is a potato tuber, and is artistically attached to the adjoining one by a chain of spuds. Success in Farming. The following from the pen of Stephen Peabody, in the New York Tribune is applicable to Southern California farming in principle, if not in example: "I was 18 years old when I first became acquainted at his home with James Lawton, and for the first time saw a farm kept in really good order. I was much struck by the order and the fact that the farm was kept in really good order. I was much struck by the order and the fact that the farm was kept in really good order. Love, Poultry and Business. The love for the business seems to be with some writers all that is necessary to succeed. That is all right, but a lazy man may "love his pet" and let the pet eat him up. Pick Out the Best. A saving of dollars in the purchase of breeding stock is often false economy, as this often means a lower grade of stock. The higher-priced birds are often the cheaper in the long run, and are much the better investment. There are many reasons for this, but it is not the purpose of this article to discuss them. THE CHEERFUL IDIOT And the Glim Dyspeptic.

The cheerful idiot is the individual who when he sees you come into the house dripping from the storm inquires pleasantly, "Is it raining?" If you were whittling and the knife slipped and cut off the top of a finger he would say just as pleasantly, "Did you cut yourself?" It seems the chief business in the life of the cheerful idiot to ask folk questions. Mostly people put up with him as they do with mosquitoes—because they can't help themselves. But once in a while the cheerful idiot runs up against the wrong man. It was that way when the C. I. of the boarding house, tackled a misery-looking fellow-boarder who was tortured by dyspepsia. "Hello Smith," he cried, "aren't you feeling well?" And Smith growled back: "It's none of your business how I'm feeling." Talk about adding insult to injury! What could be any worse than asking a man who had suffering stamped all over him, "Aren't you feeling well?" It's rather hard for the dyspeptic to make a stranger to the disease understand just how much suffering dyspepsia causes. Without resorting to the old "terrible gawking sensation in the stomach" is past description. Even after you have rectified the specific acids and pains there are no terms to express the cumulative and continued effects of them all upon both mind and body.

DON'T CULTIVATE DYSPEPSIA. That would seem unnecessary advice, yet it is a fact that in the main, people who finally become dyspeptics seem to have studied homoeopathy to bring on the disease. They eat irregularly. They eat unwholesome or unnutritious foods. They eat heartily when they are tired with a day's work and the stomach needs rest instead of exercise. In fact they make a study of the quickest way to dyspepsia or disease of the stomach in general and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. They do not practice the golden rule of homoeopathy.

When dyspepsia once has its grip on the stomach the man who has experienced with tablets and powders and other remedies without permanent relief finds himself asking the question, "Am I ever going to be well again so that I can eat with appetite and enjoyment?" The one necessity to the recovery of health is the cure of the diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Tablets of food mixtures will be highly appreciated by the recipient. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the volume in durable cloth-binding, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing over a thousand large pages and more than 700 illustrations is sent free on receipt of stamps as good for your health as just as good as gold. It is a book that you don't feel the need of this valuable medical work yourself, why not give it to some friend or young married couple. It is an invaluable gift, and one which will be highly appreciated by the recipient. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the volume in durable cloth-binding, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Pick Out the Best. A saving of dollars in the purchase of breeding stock is often false economy, as this often means a lower grade of stock. OFFICE OF THE TIMES. Los Angeles, Oct. 31, 1900. FINANCIAL. NOT BE TAXED. The Assessor of eastern city assessed a citizen $1000. Payment of taxes were refused on the ground that $1000 of the tax was in United States bonds. The assessor set up the contention that conversion of property into bonds was a subterfuge to escape taxes. The court ordered the assessment to be reduced to the value of the property in the defendant's hands in United States bonds, and they were not taxable.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

AT THE THEATERS.
LOS ANGELES THEATRE—A Female Drummer.
BURBANK—The Convict's Daughter.
ORPHEUM—Vandenberg.
CHRYSLER—Mistake.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Cars Must Have Penders.

Trouble is brewing for motormen in charge of fenderless street cars. The Chief of Police has notified crossing officers on Sprague street to arrest such persons, and wholesale arrests may follow today.

Boy Steals a Knife.

Eddie Bronson, 12 years old, who lives at No. 14244 Downey avenue, was arrested yesterday on a charge of petty larceny. Eddie is said to have purloined a valuable hunting knife from a store on South Main street.

Mails Late.

Yesterday all mails from the East over the Santa Fe and from El Paso were from five to eight hours late, and the afternoon arrivals missed the last city delivery. This throws a big load on the postoffice force today, now that the regular mails are so heavy.

Bankrupt Sale.

According to an order issued by Judge Wellborn yesterday, B. H. Dennis, secretary of the Wholesale Board of Trade and a disinterested party, is to sell the assets of the bankrupt Main-street tailor, will sell the assets at the board's rooms for the benefit of creditors November 1.

Collied With a Car.

H. K. Macgown, No. 617 West Ninth street, was treated at the Receiving Hospital yesterday afternoon for a fracture of the arm and a dislocated shoulder. He was riding a bicycle at Eighth and Olive streets and collided with a car on the corner of the Los Angeles Traction Company.

Regimental Orders.

Orders have been promulgated from the headquarters of the Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., approving the appointment of Harry M. Smith, a private of the 1st Co., of the 7th Regiment, to be a corporal. Smith is known for the coming State shoots.

Tied Him Up.

Tom Caut, a hostler from the Baldwin stables, got into a fight with a Southern Pacific Railroad yard yesterday and the yardmen tied him with a rope and ran for the police, having no time to bother with Thomas. Caut told the police a long and story about his being drugged and robbed of $30 and his coat.

Cornwell-School Flag Raising.

A handsome new flag has been purchased by the pupils of the Cornwell school on Boyle Heights, and this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock there will be a public flag raising, with appropriate songs and recitations by pupils. Members of the Board of Education are expected to be present and make short addresses. The flag is a gift of the Cornwell school and has raised funds for a new piano, to be first used today.

Child Study Meetings.

The University Child Study Circle has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. L. Morris Hughes; Vice-President, Mrs. Herbert L. Morris; Secretary, Mrs. L. A. Pratt; Treasurer, Mrs. George Smith. The club will meet Tuesday, when Mrs. Mary F. Ledyard and Lewis P. Curtis will speak. The twenty-eight-street school circle will meet at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Miss Fay of the High School will speak on "Patriotism."

Things Missing.

S. A. Jehl, who rooms at No. 4524 South Main street, misses a gold stickpin and a razor, as the result of a burglar's visit to his room, and so reports to the police. Louis Goldberg, proprietor of a second-hand store at No. 115 East First street, reports an overcoat stolen from in front of his place Wednesday evening. Two handbags, such as boys use in delivering goods, were taken from in front of the place of George H. & Sons, on New High street.

Friendless and Alone.

Chris Kirch, a blind veteran, was taken up by the police yesterday on the streets and sent to the Police Station. He said he was sick and wanted a doctor. Kirch came here from Portland a few months ago, and is friendless and alone. He has been living by himself at cheap lodgings and trying to eke out an existence on a pension of $12 a month. During the Civil War he served in the Second Missouri Cavalry, but lost his sight in a mine blast in Shasta county. He was sent to the County Hospital for medical attention.

From a cocktail dispensary to a candy kitchen may be a long step, but it is one which "Bob" Kern, one of the city's most celebrated mixologists, is about to take, and he is doing so with the hearty approval of the Anti-Saloon League, if not of his old-time patrons. "Bob" had the reputation while in the liquor business, of keeping one of the most law-abiding saloons in the city. He catered only to the "dry" trade, and never made any trouble for the police. A few weeks ago Kern sold his resort, the Wellington, on Third street, and retired from the whiskey business. He started for San Francisco last evening for a few weeks' visit, and upon his return will open a candy factory on Fourth street, opposite the new Angelus Hotel.

BREVITIES.

Send donations of cast-off clothing, furniture or food supplies to the Good Samaritan department of the Bethlehem Institutional Church, Vignes and Ducommun streets, where the clothing and wagon will call. Office hours during summer months 11 to 12 daily. Watch for the new millinery store. Bon Marche open today. November 1, 34 South Broadway, with the latest style hats and best bargains in city. The Ladies Guild of Christ Episcopal Church will open a rummage sale at Turner and Vignes streets Saturday morning. Four or five intelligent, reliable boys wanted as messengers at Western Union telegraph office, First and Spring. Carbons, platinum, Royal Sepias, "Coultes," Palace Studio, 351 S. B'way.

GALE SWEEPS ENGLISH CHANNEL.
DOVER, Oct. 31.—A fierce easterly gale has been blowing today over the whole channel, seriously interfering with all shipping. The channel steamers were obliged to abandon efforts to enter the port, and several vessels have been sunk at their moorings. The wind gauge registered sixty miles an hour. The tide is rising, and all kinds are seeking shelter from the storm. Great numbers of carcasses of animals are washed ashore in the vicinity of Deal, indicating that a shipping disaster has occurred there.

TRY dinner tonight at the Del Monte. You'll enjoy it.

"JOLLY DAY OF THE DEAD." You'll find the title of an article in the Times Magazine, the coming Sunday, in which the strange customs of "la dia de los muertos" in Mexico are described.
